M2L Take the Leap…

Manager to Leader

Are you ready to take the cognitive, professional and personal leap from manager to leader?

Manager v Leader

Compared to 'manager' the word 'leader' seems so much more complete. More than dishing out orders. More professional. More sophisticated. More educated.

But what is the difference?

A manager is appointed. You are a manager by right of the org chart. Largely, your direct reports don't have an choice but to be managed by you.

Leaders are a different story. People chose to be led. The org chart can't make them.

So really, it's not up to you to decide if you are a manager or a leader. It's up to the people around you.

All you can do it give them a reason to be led by you.

"Why would anyone chose to be led by you?"
